THE PROJECT

We installed doorsets, ironmongery, communal doors and some glazed screens in a laboratory used by a tobacco manufacturer in order to develop e-cigarette technology. Working for specialist fit-out contractor Overbury, our involvement was strictly time-regulated as we were part of a larger job.

THE PROCESS

In a laboratory environment, the doors had to conform to certain specifications – for example, they had to be “encapsulated” smokeproof, sealed doors. We were able to complete this job using a team of only two people.
